Why is it that the shortest month of the year always seems to me to be the longest? Perhaps it is that by this time of year we have had enough of winter, and we begin to look forward to the coming of spring. I have found this past winter particularly long, cold and dark. Even that pesky harbinger of spring, the groundhog, has declared that we will have another six weeks of winter!

For me, the hardest thing about winter is the lack of sunshine. It is dark when I go to work, and dark again when I come home. I think I have a case of the "February blahs". Judging by the plethora of self-help hints on the internet, I'm not alone.

Many of the hints that I read focused on 'nourishing the soul' in different ways – through eating wonderful food, buying new art work, pampering ourselves and getting regular physical exercise. The one that one caught my attention was listening to music to lift our spirits. How about that? I'm sure we all have pieces of music that warm our hearts and souls.

The poet John Keble was born in 1792 in Fairford, Gloucestershire. He studied and taught at Oxford and eventually became a parish priest in that village. Over the course of his lifetime, he wrote and rewrote a collection of poems called The Christian Year. In this tome, he wrote a poem for every day of the year. One of his most famous poems, which had 14 verses by the end became the old hymn "Sun of My Soul". The first verse contains the lines:

Sun of my soul,
Thou Saviour dear,
It is not night
if Thou be near;

O may no earthborn
cloud arise
To hide Thee from Thy servant's eyes!

That got me thinking about how as organists and music directors, we should be striving to uplift the souls and spirits of our congregations on Sunday mornings through the music we choose to play. It may be an old hymn, or a certain anthem that has special meaning, or a particular rousing postlude, we have many opportunities to bring sunshine into the souls of our parishioners.

It's also really important to remember that we need to feed and nourish our souls as well. One of the ways of doing that is by taking part in upcoming RCCO events. Keep your RCCO event calendar handy and plan to attend one of the events listed in this month's newsletter.

Pro Organo

KAREN HOLMES

The next concert in the Pro Organo series will take place on the Friday after Easter, April 6th, at 7:30 p.m., at Rideau Park United Church, Alta Vista and Cunningham. The performer will be Rachel Mahon who is Assistant Organist at Chester Cathedral, in the U.K., and a performing professional musician. Before taking up her post at Chester, she was the first female organ scholar of St. Paul's Cathedral in London, England.

Rachel was raised in Toronto, where her parents were both choir directors. She initially began studying piano, but switched to organ in 2005 after hearing Widor's famous Toccata. She won a scholarship from the Royal Canadian College of Organists to begin studying with Melva Graham, and in 2007 continued under Andrew Ager. She received the degree of Bachelor of Music in organ at the University of Toronto School of Music under John Tuttle.

Rachel Mahon has held organ posts at several churches in Toronto, and in England. In 2012, she and fellow organist Sarah Svendsen founded the duo Organized Crime in which the two organists entertain audiences not only with their music, but with their crazy antics. Rachel has won several awards for organ performance, including second in the 2013 Canadian National Organ Playing Competition here in Ottawa. In addition, she has been awarded a graduating scholarship from the Faculty of Music, University of Toronto and the Godfrey Hewitt Memorial Scholarship from the RCCO.

She has performed with a number of choirs: the Toronto Mendelssohn Choir, the Elora Festival Choir, and the Tallis Choir, among others.

As the William and Irene Miller Organ Scholar at St. Paul's in London, Rachel was responsible for directing choir rehearsals, performing for church services, playing in recitals, and acting as assistant choir librarian, among other duties.

The programme on April 6th will include works by Buxtehude, Tomkins, Howells, Messiaen, MacMillan, Schumann, Dupré, Vaughan Williams and Bach-Guilman. Full details of her program are available on the Ottawa Centre web-site.
